Acknowledgments

I am sincerely grateful to the following colleagues for reviewing portions of the original draft: Amy E. K. Arner; Claire V. Brisson, BS, MLIS, A.G.®; Sharon DeBartolo Carmack, MFA, CG; Harold Henderson, CG; J. Mark Lowe, CG, FUGA; Raymond C. Niro, MLIS, MEd, CG; Alice Hoyt Veen, CG.

My deepest gratitude is extended to all the archivists and librarians at the six state historical societies who made innumerable document retrievals and answered countless questions to ensure this finding aid is as complete as possible.

I assume sole responsibility for all errors.

Introduction

Farmers, blacksmiths, shoemakers, lawyers, physicians, and day laborers (collectively tradesmen) all performed work for others and expected to be paid for it, sometimes in cash and sometimes by barter. To keep track of their transactions, tradesmen, churches, government agencies, and corporate entities recorded their debits and credits in one or more account books. These books contain information useful to genealogists and historians:

Goods and services that were important to local residents.

Customer names, most of whom were local residents.

Church donations, pew rents, salaries, and the cost of operating the church.

Carpenters' books include coffins for customers. Such entries imply or confirm deaths (possibly unrecorded) in that customer's family.

Tradesmens' books might include family vital records and dowries.

Town expenses sometimes contain care of the poor.

Justice of the peace books and loose papers occasionally include unrecorded marriages.

Undertakers' books contain decedents' names.

ABOUT THIS BOOK

The purpose of this book is to provide a more complete inventory of account books than can be found using the online catalogs of the six historical societies. Many account books listed in card catalogs, paper finding aids, and online finding aids are not listed in the online catalogs. This inventory, and the methods in which the data are sorted, furnishes researchers with a more complete selection of sources enabling them to deliver a better-informed paper.

This book provides basic information for more than 14,100 account books, of which fewer than 4,000 appear in the online catalogs. If the catalog or finding aid provided sufficient detail to describe an item (as illustrated in the six chapters), I did not examine it. Any item appearing in brackets “[]” denotes information that was not present in the Note: Onsite work for this inventory finished in February 2020. Sorting the data (as described above) revealed minor issues with a few of the entries. Restrictions during the current (2020–2022) pandemic prevented me from visiting some of the societies to resolve those issues. Therefore, there are a few blank spots in the tables below, a few items lacking detail, and some possible duplicate entries. For example, there are “Freight” and “Rent” entries without specifying the mode of freight transportation (rail, ship, etc.) or the type of rent (house, shop, etc.). There are fewer than one hundred of these minor issues.

Maine Historical Society

489 Congress Street Portland, ME 04101-3498

www.mainehistory.org

The society is open Tuesday through Saturday, 10 AM to 4 PM May–October, and Wednesday through Saturday, 10 AM to 4 PM November–April (except certain holidays and holiday weekends). Access is free to members and students. Non-members are provided one free day of research; the fee for subsequent visits is $10/day. Photocopying, scanning, and flash photography of manuscripts is not permitted. With staff approval, members may use non-flash photography. The society provides this service for a fee for long distance requests. Some manuscript items are stored offsite and require advanced notice for retrieval; contact the library in advance at research@mainehistory.org. Visit www.mainehistory.org/library_visit.shtml for current hours and fees or for additional information. Many of the manuscript documents are fragile so the society reserves the right to restrict use of originals, in which case surrogates may be provided.

Finding aids at the repository or online may contain more details than provided here. If the finding aid or catalog provided sufficient detail to describe an item, that item was not examined. Unless otherwise specified, all place-names are in Maine.

REQUESTING MANUSCRIPTS

Each historical society has its own unique call number system. To view an item, you will need to fill out a “Request for Special Materials.” Each request requires specific information: call number or location, box number, folder number, and collection name. This information is provided in the tables below. Collections stored offsite require advanced notice and are labeled “(offsite)” in the Collection Name column. Closed collections are labeled “(closed)” in the Occupation or product column.
